Dear Parents and Carers

RSHE Policy Consultation

As you may be aware, the Department for Education has announced changes to Relationship Sex and Health Education (RSHE), a statutory element of the broader PSHE curriculum. In order to comply with the statutory guidance, we at Godalming Junior School are welcoming feedback on our revised policy, which indicates what topics are taught and when. This can be found on the school website here. The document is the PDF titled 'Relationship, Sex and Health Education Policy DRAFT'. The consultation will close on Friday 12th December.

PSHE has very high profile in the school and the principles inform so much of the culture here aligned with our Love, Live, Learn ethos, our school values and our gold standard UNICEF Rights Respecting School status. We feel it is imperative that we educate all children in an age appropriate and professional manner when teaching these elements of this curricular area.

We do consider this area of learning a strength at GJS and this is why we welcome your comments and views on our revised policy. The suggested changes or additions taken from the statutory guidance have been highlighted.

If you have any questions or comments for our review please contact the school office at, info@godalming-junior.surrey.sch.uk. Any questions or comments will be kept and reviewed.

Kind regards

Mr Adam Samson
